

University of Exeter

Health Professions Education and Wellbeing Research Group Seminar

Shame - its role in the professional medical identity

Dr Sandy Miles

Friday, 1st December 2023, 1 p.m. – 2 p.m.
Room SC2.13, South Cloisters, St Luke's Campus and Online via Microsoft Teams

Biography

Dr. Sandy Miles is a GP and Medical Educator in Devon. Alongside her clinical role she works in Postgraduate GP training, was Clinical Director of Eastleigh Primary Care Network and, together with Dr Sam Powell, established popular retreats for doctors. She achieved distinction in the MSc Medical Humanities at King's College London in 2018 and has subsequently published about Shame in medicine and the role it plays in the formation of the medical identity. She speaks with doctors and other healthcare professionals to explore how to understand and minimise the causes and effects of shame in healthcare settings.

<https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/shame-its-role-in-the-professional-medical-identity-tickets-748336012157?aff=oddtcreator>